

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A semiconductor integrated circuit device has a fuse device that can be electrically disconnected without a breakage caused by using a laser beam or current. The semiconductor integrated circuit device employs, as the fuse device for storing status information, a MOSFET of a single polysilicon EEPROM-type cell manufactured through a process of fabricating a volatile semiconductor memory cell array.